Speaker: Andrea Widburg

Deputy Editor, American Thinker

Topic: What Do We Need To Do Now?

Andrea is a Bay Area native who now lives just outside of Charleston, South Carolina. After thirty years as a lawyer, she finally lucked into her dream job in 2020 and now works full time as an editor and writer for American Thinker, an online conservative publication.

Here is how Thomas Lifson, Editor and Publisher of American Thinker, highlighted Andrea when he brought her in to the American Thinker team in January 2020. "You may not be familiar with her name, but if you are a fan of the conservative blogosphere, you probably have seen her blog Bookworm Room. Andrea is bringing the same insight and eloquence to AT (American Thinker), and we are thrilled to have her on the team."

Andrea posts one or more articles a day on American Thinker. And you will see those articles linked on RealClearPolitics, Lucianne, and other top sites every day by her readers. She has her thumb on the pulse of the nation.

We in Marin are familiar with her because she was our neighbor. Those of you who were members and enjoyed the speakers presented monthly at 'Second Wednesdays' will recognize her as a leader in that conservative group.

Join us on-line to get the absolute latest news and Andrea's take on the news on January 27, 2021. Get your questions answered.

Presidents' Report

As we ring in 2021--alone--it appears that the "DemoRats" have given the nation a tutorial in election fraud and stealing. As we go to print, the fate of the Senate hangs in the balance, and unless President Trump can pull a "rabbit out of the hat," it appears that the next administration will be the corrupt Biden/Harris one. When election fraud prevails, there appears to be little hope for a fair and balanced society. The Dems seem intent on furthering division, not decreasing it.

What President Trump managed to accomplish, with no Dem help, and very little from Republicans, was monumental. Biden will quickly reverse the Trump agenda of Middle East peace, standing up for fair trade with Mexico, Canada, and China, energy independence, enforcing border law, etc. 2021 will not be starting on a happy note. California's "silver lining" could be the New California movement. Newsom's removal from office seems unlikely, in spite of his tyrannical and destructive governance. But after his French Laundry dinner, the recall is picking up steam. If you have not signed a petition, make that a New Year's resolution. Whether business-oriented, tax-paying Californians ever wake up, or have enough voice to make a change, remains to be seen.

On a personal note, this is the last President's Report I, Kathryn, will be writing. For several years, Peter and I have been concerned about the "state of the State." As a 4th generation Californian, whose whole family came here in the 1860s, this was not an easy decision for Peter (and me) to make, but we will be moving to Genoa, Nevada, in early March. The good news is that we are three houses from MRWF members Chris Blackburn and Guy Sapp, who moved there five years ago. We will be replacing our Petaluma River and Bay views with Carson Valley and snow-capped Sierra views, and have already met some "like-minded" people in the community. As you may know, with our son, daughter-in-law, and grand-girls in the East Bay, we will be visiting, and I hope to make some MRWF luncheons, if life ever is "normal" again. I will miss you all. Over the years I have worked with wonderful, hard-working, and committed MRWF Boards, and now leave you all in Jane Maushardt's capable hands.

We know it was a landslide Trump victory. To quote Yogi Berra, "It ain't over 'til the fat lady sings!"

Countdown to Socialism - Devin Nunes' New Book *

California's own Congressman (District 22) and an unsung American hero, Devin Nunes, has written a pamphlet book in the style of what Thomas Paine had distributed preceding the Revolutionary War. In the late eighteenth century, pamphlets electrified the colonies and helped to forge American democracy, ringing the alarm for what was wrong and what needed to be done.

Nunes warns that something needs to be done now before our country loses its morals and values. He writes, "The Left has wholly rejected the fundamental principles that bound Americans together and allowed us to work out our differences democratically and peacefully." The Left now rejects free speech, a fair voting system, private property, and the rule of law. They don't dare yet admit it publicly, but as you'll see in this book, their policies and rhetoric are incompatible with any of these principles as we understand them today.

MRWF Satellite Club

January 22nd, Friday evening, is our next scheduled Satellite Club event. Now we all know that we are daily adjusting to the ebb and flow of the government's virus lockdown pronouncements. We will do something on this evening, so put it on your calendar. It will be a surprise. It will be indoors or outdoors.

On December 20th, Sunday afternoon at dusk we had a pop-up event at the Marin Veterans Memorial flower garden. This is becoming one of our favorite locations for outdoors. First, Sarah prepared a history of Christmas for each war era and the focus was the most popular Christmas song with the troops. Sarah had her friend Bob, the videographer, there to film it and to record short intervals of the chosen songs. Great idea! Second, the heavens provided a celestial event just after sunset. The conjunction of two planets, Jupiter and Saturn, displayed above the southwest horizon as the sky darkened at 5:15 p.m. It is the 'Christmas Star' to us who are looking at it from our place on this Earth. The last time these two planets aligned so closely was 1620 a.d. So there you have it; a once in a lifetime event.

We will be thinking about what to do on January 22nd. If you have any ideas let us know. Call Jane Maushardt.

Volunteer to be the 2021 Satellite Chair. We need a Member to step up and be the Chair of this on-going monthly get-together. If you are a regular attendee, that is you!

Voter Registration February Volunteers

Our next Voter Registration effort will be in February 2021 after things settle down. This month get in to 'Action'. Here are three assignments that MRWF needs to be active in:

1) Volunteer with 4 other MRWF's to walk one precinct – hang Republican door hangers, talk to No Party Preference residents. This is a test to see if we can move some of these voters in to the Republican column in spring 2021.

2) Donate to the Georgia Republican candidates for U.S. Senate now through their Election day, January 5, 2021 and beyond.

MRWF Woman of the Year 2020

Sarah Nagle being honored by MRWF Board with her mother attending at The Club at McInnis on Nov. 24, 2020.

We are very pleased to recognize Sarah Nagle for her talents and the hundreds of hours she has spent in supporting our Club, the MarinGOP, and conservative projects and ideas throughout this year.

As the intrepid Telephone Committee Chair she and her committee have made a zillion calls to encourage our members to join our meetings, to commiserate with them on the 'shutdown', and to keep spirits up in these times.

Here are a number of other things she has done: created the Marin Veterans Memorial Flower Garden and arranges for the daily maintenance by MRWF members/friends; runs the blog at MarinGOP.org and posts weekly content under the moniker 'Millennial Republican' including video content and text which she writes and narrates; stepped in to take the District 3 Novato representative seat on the MarinGOP Central Committee; has donated jewelry 'bling' for MRWF fundraisers and new member packets. Those are just a few things and in addition you have seen her out at 'Flag Waving' and 'Recall' events.

Thank you Sarah for all that you do to support our members, the projects of our Club and conservative organizations throughout our Marin County.

Legislative Report

One day's news from the SF Bay Area — how leftist can you get?

By Bookworm Date: 12/24/2020

A glance at the home page for Marin County's main newspaper provides a snapshot into the leftist brain.

Although I no longer live in Marin County, I still check the local news. It's not unusual for me to see familiar people named in stories and I always recognize the places. For whatever reason, today's newspaper struck me as just exceptionally leftist. This is the air that people breathe in Northern California. I've highlighted the words and I'll explain why each strikes me as peak leftist -- and that's without discussing too many stories behind the headlines:

1. "unsheltered residents." The actual headline states the truth which is that "homeless" campers are taking over a former military base that is not a planned suburban community with lots of children. However, the moment there's more space you get that euphemism: "unsheltered residents." Homeless has a wealth of meanings: People without homes, drug addicts, mentally ill people, and criminals.
2. Governor Newsom focuses on "character" with Alex Padilla. Nope. That's retrofitting. Padilla's selection boiled down to one thing: His race. Padilla has no known character, except that he illegally promised to pay $35 million taxpayer dollars to a Democrat political front group and then tried to hide his wrongdoing. Of course, thinking about it, that's precisely the type of character leftists like.
3. The explosion of the Wuhan virus in California. Up until about two weeks ago, California leftists were smug: Next to Oregon, they had the most draconian shutdown laws in America and it was paying off. Sure, their politicians were hypocrites, ignoring the misery they imposed on others, and yes, except for the tech sector and white collar jobs that are home to leftists, California's economy was collapsing, but it was all worth it.... Oh, wait a minute. Do you mean to say that California is now one of the worst Wuhan virus hotbeds, not just in America, but in the world? Why, yes it is. I'm desperately sorry for my conservative friends who are trapped there, but for all the leftists and all the go-along with the leftists it's hard for me to feel much sympathy. Keep in mind that, in the Bay Area at least, most of those small business owners being hurt have voted Democrat for decades.

4. Reversal of transit layoffs. Government will screw you, the taxpayer, but it will never screw itself. Expect more and higher taxes -- and, in the case of the Golden Gate Transit District, higher bridge tolls and bus fares -- despite the government's deliberate decision to destroy the economy.
5. Marin City gets Kamala action figures. First, how sexist is it to put Kamala in a skirt. Second, you can't engage in action in a pencil skirt. Third, propaganda much?
6. Ceremony honors homeless who died. Wait! They had space. Did they forget that these people are "unsheltered residents"? No, of course not. You use "unsheltered residents" when you want to clean them up and make people feel guilty that they don't want deranged, criminal people taking over their communities. You use the word "homeless" when you want to make people feel guilty that someone who as often as not chose to live on the streets has died.

Just as fish don't notice the water, Bay Area residents don't notice the non-stop drip, drip, drip of leftism sinking into their brains. Everything reinforces leftist shibboleths. Open up any Bay Area "news" publication and you'll find little in the way of actual news, but a whole lot of propaganda.

A needed challenge to Newsom’s one-man rule

By THE EDITORIAL BOARD / opinion@scng.com / Orange County Register

Updated: December 25, 2020

The limits of a governor’s powers during an emergency, if there are any limits, are the subject of a high-stakes legal battle now pending before the Third District Court of Appeals in Sacramento.

Assembly members Kevin Kiley, R-Rocklin, and James Gallagher, R-Yuba City, filed suit against Gov. Gavin Newsom over executive orders that the lawmakers say are an infringement on the powers granted to the Legislature by the state constitution. Sutter County Superior Court Judge Sarah Heckman agreed, ruling that the California Emergency Services Act grants the governor the power to suspend laws but not the power to create new ones. Heckman issued an injunction on Nov. 13 against Newsom, prohibiting him from issuing executive orders that “amend” or “make new” statutory laws.

The governor appealed the ruling, and the briefs have now been filed with the court of appeals.

Newsom argues that the trial court should have declared the case moot, because the specific executive order that was challenged, N-67-20, applied to the presidential election and the expanded distribution of mail-in ballots. In considering the authorization for executive orders more broadly, Newsom contends, the court erred and “threatens enormous practical harm” by limiting the governor’s authority.

Kiley and Gallagher argue that the case is not moot, because the lawfulness of the governor’s orders under the California Emergency Services Act remains the broad question at issue. They further argue that Newsom’s petition to the appeals court “contains many false statements regarding the evidence and record in the lower court.”

Others have weighed in. An amicus, or “friend of the court,” brief was filed by Secretary of State Alex Padilla, who was just appointed to the U.S. Senate by Newsom. Unsurprisingly, Padilla argues that Newsom is right and the legislators are wrong. He says the changes Newsom made to the state’s election law were necessary because of the COVID-19 pandemic, and in any case were written into law by the Legislature later.

Also filing briefs in support of the governor: the League of Cities and the California State Association of Counties, two UC Berkeley law professors and a number of state lawmakers.
