Virtual Meeting Live On-Line, Wed. Nov. 18th

From your home and on your computer or telephone

11:30am – 12:30pm

Speaker: Ron Ross

Author, Writer/Contributor to American Spectator

Topic: Perspective - the Results of the Election November 3, 2020 - What Now?

Ron Ross Ph.D. is a former economics professor and author of The Unbeatable Market. He has been an American Spectator contributor since 2010.

Ross was born in Tulsa, Oklahoma, grew up there, got his bachelor's degree in economics at the University of Tulsa, and Ph.D. at Oklahoma State University. He came to Humboldt County in 1969 to teach economics at what was then called Humboldt State College. He taught there for ten years and then switched from teaching economics to doing economics. He went into private practice as an investment advisor. In 1990 he joined Wayne Caldwell and John Gloor and they later formed their firm Premier Financial Group. They currently have $600 million dollars of asset under management and 15 employees.

When Mr. Ross came to California there was still some bigotry against Okies. That hurt his feelings at first then he remembered something Will Rogers had said. You probably know he was also from Oklahoma - what Will Rogers said was, "When the Okies came to California it raised the average IQs in both states." An observation Ross has - he says, "for numerous reasons many conservatives are currently leaving California. That will probably lower the average IQ in California back to where it had been."

Join us to discuss Ron Ross' observations on the current election and find out about how he sees what is about to happen short term and long term as a result of this election 2020.

Be ready with your questions and ask away!

Presidents' Report

Wow!!! Did I have fun yesterday (10/10/2020)!!! In the midst of all this election season turmoil and angst, there was a large flotilla to support President Trump held on, of all places, San Francisco Bay. On board my boat were 130 people and the boat was covered with Trump signs. We boarded in the morning in Oakland at Jack London Square. There was more red, white, and blue than I have seen in months! Lots of flags and bling. I looked around at the guests, and instead of being a bunch of "rich, white guys," as the left would characterize us on the right, it was a completely diverse mix of devoted Trump supporters. Interestingly, a large contingent of Vietnamese, who had fled their country's communism, was there in force to support our socialism-opposing president.

We joined up with about 50 other boats at McCovey Cove at about 11:00 a.m., and then our boat blasted over loud speakers the fabulous live entertainment and singing by Joy Villa and Diana Nagy, two great female patriots, who had everyone on our and nearby boats dancing on decks and singing up a storm. All the boats then headed down the San Francisco waterfront, music blaring and flags flying, to mostly enthusiastic watchers and American flag flyers on shore.

This event was a needed reprieve from the negative onslaught of news in recent days. It was a great reminder that, outside of our devoted ranks, there are so many others that are supporting our Republican and conservative views and fighting for President Donald J. Trump to win.

I wanted to share this wonderful experience with everyone. I am so optimistic that the outcome of the election will be a good one. I wish you all could have been there!!

Membership Matters

We would like to welcome our two new 2020 regular members Mia Camera and Marilyn Joyce, and associate members Melinda Barbee, Colin Frost, and Marshall Donig. Thank you for supporting us, and we look forward to seeing you at our luncheons and our Satellite evening events the rest of this year and into 2021. Hopefully we will soon be able to be together in person again. As you are out and about in this one precious week before we vote to re-elect our wonderful president, as you encounter other DJT supporters, please encourage them to join our club and to tell their friends as well. There are many more of us than you would think in Marin, as I am finding when I chat with people. It goes without saying to encourage everyone to get out and vote and to look forward to the celebration on November 3rd.

Remember that our regular member dues are $40 and our associate dues are $25. Associate members are women who belong to another Republican Women Federated club, Republican men, and non-citizens. We, of course, are always looking for new members, so please bring friends and family to our luncheons once we are back in person. MRWF memberships make great birthday and holiday gifts. Membership forms can be found in this newsletter or on our website. Click here www.mrwf.org, then click on Home tab. We continue to appreciate your commitment to MRWF.

Battle for the Soul of America

* Adapted from "The Mount Rushmore Election" by John Fonte in The American Mind, October 5, 2020

Theorists - from Aristotle to the American Founders and beyond - examine the phenomena that determine a nation's political "soul." Historically, America's core principles and shared culture embraced the ideals of equality, individual liberty, political freedom, and a remarkable constitution that made "we the people" sovereign and not the government.

Yet, since the 1960s a "long march" of identity politics/wokeism has made a stealthy move through America's universities, media, entertainment, government bureaucracy, and many corporations. That march rejected our shared principles and history and focused instead on conflicts and differences between ethnic and gender groups. The result is nightly mayhem and violence perpetrated by groups like Antifa and Black Lives Matter. We now have two fundamental, antagonistic visions of America and our way of life.

This intense division is clearly represented in the presidential campaigns of Joe Biden and Donald Trump. This election is the battle for the soul of America.

MRWF SATELLITE CLUB

Thank you all for coming to our Satellite event at Jane Mau-shardt's home on October 23rd. We had a great time enjoying each other, the conversation, the back yard and Tess, the puppy.

Tess is our 'therapy' dog we think, who invites us to de-stress with her in these times of angst.

Thank you Jane for your hospitality and thank you everyone for the contributions you made, both in the food and conversation. Some of that pre-election tension found a release this evening!

Our next Satellite Club meeting will be in January. We need a member to step up and be the Chair of this on-going monthly get-together. Is that you? Call Jane.

Open, Satellite Club Chair

In Celebration of Veterans' Day

By: Sarah Nagle, MRWF Board Member

Date: for the memorial occasion of 11/11/2020

The Great War (a.k.a. World War I)

The men memorialized here never knew that their war would be the first of two great World Wars. For them World War I was the "War in Europe" or the "Great War." In 1917, 1918 and 1919 many believed that this would be the last war. That the sacrifice of these men would ensure that future generations would not have to fight another war.

When the United States officially entered the war on April 6th, 1917, the "Great Powers" had been engaged in wholesale slaughter for nearly three years. The Americans who sailed for France in 1917 as part of the American Expeditionary Force (the AEF) were well aware of the carnage they were about to experience. When the Americans marched down the gangways of the ships in France in late June of 1917 they were greeted by an ecstatic civilian population and already weary French, British and Commonwealth troops desperate for relief.

The men of the AEF were called "Yankees" by the Europeans, but they called themselves "Doughboys" and the bronze statue here commemorates the typical Doughboy of the War. Many believed they were fighting to repay a historical national debt. France had sent aid to the Army of George Washington during America's War of Independence against Great Britain. In return, nearly one hundred and forty years later, America sent her sons to France and when the Doughboys marched down the gangways many shouted, "Lafayette, we have arrived!"

Over the course of less than two years nearly two million Americans would be transported to Europe. Over one million would see active service on the front lines. Over two hundred thousand would be wounded. Over fifty thousand would die in combat. Over sixty-five thousand additional men would be lost due to disease and other causes. The men memorialized on this plaque sadly did not make it home to Marin. But they were not forgotten by their relatives, friends, neighbors and comrades in arms.

Election Update - National

Path to Victory: How Trump Wins

By: Sarah Nagle, MRWF Board Member

Date: 10/4/2020 excerpted . Click here to read the full article.

In the next 30 (now 8) days these are the places that matter ... We really DO need every vote and then some, and I don't care if California stays blue, I want every red vote to be counted too!

But these are the states that matter in the home stretch.

1) Pennsylvania: I've never lived in Pennsylvania. But I spent a sliver of my childhood in rural New York State right on the other side of the Delaware River not too far from Pennsylvania. Rural New York State and rural Pennsylvania have a lot in common. The rural part of the state has a lot of trees, a lot of small farms and a whole lot of deer hunters. (And guys who fish.) Pennsylvania also has a whole lot of industry that got hit hard in the last fifty years as the kind of corporations Joe Biden has spent his political career being lobbied by exported jobs. Biden spends a lot of time talking about Scranton, but he hasn't lived there in more than half a century. And I don't think the people of Scranton want to vote away the remnants of their industry in order to further enrich Hunter Biden. Pennsylvania isn't Philadelphia. Philadelphia isn't the tail that wags the dog in Pennsylvania. And the Lehigh Valley will decide Pennsylvania. So ... newsflash to Marin Conservatives, cross-over-Democrats in a part of Pennsylvania known as the "Irish Valley" got Donald Trump elected in 2016. I'm hoping they will deliver in 2020. Because President Trump has done more than any president in my lifetime to stop the bleed and try and save American manufacturing jobs.

2) Wisconsin: Milwaukee and Kenosha? Back in April I actually assumed there would be riots in Milwaukee this year... but I figured it would be the normal stuff. Outraged Bernie Bros storming the Democratic Convention (which was supposed to be held in Milwaukee this year). Well ... The DNC went virtual this year and riots went national. What is weirder is that Kenosha had a violent riot. I've been to Kenosha. Stuff like that REALLY isn't supposed to happen in a place like Kenosha. There used to be a AMC plant there, they built the Hornet. Kenosha can't afford 50 million dollars worth of damage. (And people in Wisconsin KNOW this wasn't a spontaneous "local" thing... probably people driving up from Chicago.) Illinois will vote for Biden. Chicago is the tail that wags the political dog in Illinois, but cross the line into Wisconsin and people are NOT happy about this. If you are a leftwing housewife with three ex husbands, two nannies and three maids in Ross, "arson for equity" probably makes sense to you.... (Because it doesn't happen in your neighborhood.) If you are a dope smoking tech hanger-on who lives with three roommates in a two bedroom unit in Oakland, Molotov cocktails sound like fun.... Torching something? Heck, entertainment has been thin on the ground this year. Coachella was cancelled, so was Burning Man. But if you are an average working couple with a mortgage and a dog and maybe a couple of kids ... What happened in Kenosha was NOT fun.

3) Minnesota: Minnesota is traditionally the peaceable kingdom; also traditionally liberal. Not liberal in the I-was-in-an-ashram-and-down-with-the-movement-in-the-60s kind of way that a lot of people in San Francisco are "liberal." Minnesota is an old fashioned liberal bastion where most people believe in fairness and equality... you know, all that stuff the New Left doesn't believe in anymore? Minnesota is blue on the map — but I think Minnesota can flip. Back in 2008 Barack Obama carried Minnesota by roughly 10 points. Which is a solid win ... In 2016 Hillary Clinton carried Minnesota, but she only managed a win by running up numbers in just a few counties. Something really interesting happened in Minnesota between 2008 and 2016 —The Democratic-Farmer-Labor coalition basically LOST all the farmers. There really isn't much of a rural Democratic vote left in Minnesota anymore. Barack Obama's policies, specifically the ACA, hurt middle class small business people and farmers too much. You know how he said there would be winners and losers? Well, rural middle class people in Minnesota were the losers and the Democratic Party has been losing their votes ever since. Minnesota is blue on the map — but I don't think people in Minnesota like the direction the New Left wants to take America. And something interesting may happen in Minnesota next month.

4) Florida: I have a good feeling about Florida. Florida is almost always a toss up state. Florida is also a tough state to figure out demographically. You have a lot of retirees out of New York and the upper Midwest. You have a lot of college age people who want the sand and the surf and the perpetual pool-side bar vibe. You have a very diverse latino population. You have a huge Cubano population, a growing Puerto Rican population, and a French language Haitian-American press. This is a state where communism and anti-communism aren't just classroom style theoretical debates for a lot of people. You could be retired in Florida for twenty years but you could still be reading the Canton, Ohio newspaper. Ditto for New York. Israel is also always a hot topic around Boca. And the senior population of Florida, particularly the ex-New Yorker senior population of Florida, are probably reading the New York Post.

5) Michigan: The Iron Range doesn't get scared of a little crude language. The Iron Range is scared of hordes of non-reality based government bureaucrats who would happily sell out the North Country just to cozy up to a chablis swigging Canadian with the UN. And quite frankly, I don't think Gretchen Whitmer is nearly as popular as Rachel Maddow thinks she is. Newsflash Governor, after you tried to keep people from putting their boats in the water and gardening because of Covid-19 — Well — you showed people what the nanny state really looks like. And I don't think they actually liked it much. The protests AGAINST Whitmer's stay-at-home order suggest they REALLY didn't like it.

6) Texas.... Oh yeah, we really need to hold the line in Texas. I'm not really worried about Texas this year, but unless we put some backbone into it, Austin could be the next Marin.

In Memoriam - Constance Govi

Constance Govi, a long-time member, passed away on October 4, 2020.

She joined MRWF over 10 years ago. We enjoyed her attendance at many/most of our monthly Speaker/Luncheons over those many years. She always sat with her friends at the 'Veterans' table, near the Veterans display board and the donations collection box.

Over the years Connie involved herself in community volunteering and notably was on the Marin County Civil Grand Jury in the 1970's.

She was a third generation Californian, was born in Vallejo, CA and graduated from Dominican College in San Rafael.
